

ABSTRACT

A flow mixer apparatus and method in an injection molding system which transitions a flowing medium around an obstruction and/or a degree change in direction, said
5 flowing medium exhibiting reduced stagnation points and substantially uniform flow characteristics downstream of the obstruction and/or change in direction.